

Libraries Transform.

What do we do at the OCCC Library?

- The OCCC Library supports the college's mission by providing the collections, services, and spaces that support students, faculty, staff, and the greater community. The Library contributes to the development of lifelong learners by providing comprehensive Information and Communication Technology Literacy programs for every OCCC student.

How? Our User-Centered Approach

- Our Library services are frequently evaluated and updated to meet the changing needs of library users. We encourage user participation and feedback in the development and maintenance of library collections services, and spaces.
- With information and ideas flowing in both directions – from the library to the user and from the user to the library – library services have the ability to evolve and improve on a constant and rapid basis.

The 2nd Half of our Mission Statement: Provide Information and Communication Technology Literacy Programs

What does that even mean????

ICT literate— able to define information needs and use a range of tools, technologies, and techniques to search, locate, use, and apply information to meet those needs.

Why??

"To succeed in our global, information society, students must be able to find and use information in all its forms as well as produce and present it in all forms. That's ICT literacy, and any student who graduates without these skills is at a serious disadvantage."

Dr. Michael B. Eisenberg, Founding Dean of the ISchool, U of W

Libraries Transform.

Libraries store the energy that fuels the imagination. They open up windows to the world and inspire us to explore and achieve, and contribute to improving our quality of life. Libraries change lives for the better.
