Spring biz here

If you look to the spring with anticipation of a fresh new start, or learning new things to help your small business or career, check out the lineup of workshops the Oregon Coast Community College Small Business Development Center.

This season's classes include "Excel Level 2: Tips and Tricks," offered on Wednesday, April 19.

"Just about all of us could use a refresher on this fundamental application that touches so many aspects of a business' operation," said Dave Price, with OCCC's Office of Engagement.

Also back by popular demand is Aaron Nobles, who is traveling from Washington to deliver his engaging "Google Business Profile" course, which he has been working to expand from earlier iterations. Effective management and use of your Google business profile (once known as "Google My Business") is crucial to keeping your business in front of new customers and relevant to search engines. His class will run two Mondays, April 17 and 24, in Lincoln City.

There's much more on tap, too. On May 18, SBDC Director Gregory Price will present his own workshop on Disaster Planning and Resiliency, working with a guide that he helped the Oregon Small Business Development Center Network adapt from a similar resource created in Vermont.

And, this term marks another first for the Oregon Coast SBDC — three foundational business workshops delivered in person, entirely in Spanish. The topics include how to start a business, recordkeeping requirements and financial literacy. All three workshops will be delivered in Lincoln City on April 6 and 7, by Carlos Mendoza, a business advisor and instructor already working with clients at SBDCs at Clackamas and Columbia Gorge community colleges.
