Roof Project Timeline

Financials

The board approved a final budget of $2.284 million. We are currently projected to end around $1.715 million. This may fluctuate a bit with small bills that are outstanding. But we should be coming in around $569,000 under the GMP.

Central Campus Roof Update

- Crew averaged roughly 9,000 square feet per week.
- Installation was slowed by repairs to the sub roof and the need to manufacture some of the sheet on site due to them being too long to transport.
- These delays were expected, and the crew made up time.
- A separate crew has been working on interior wall repairs from water damage along with a new roof access door.
- The previous roof access was sealed off when we moved the student store to the commons.

Construction Waste Side Note

Good wood in the “scrap” pile in the staging area was made available to employees.

We have seen and heard some awesome use of it so far.

This would all have ended up in the land fill on most jobs.

Have fun and learn with Community Ed courses

Oregon Coast Community College has announced its most extensive selection of noncredit community education courses ever, with more than 80 exciting offerings this fall. The lineup includes a variety of classes aimed at enriching the lives of community members, whether they are looking to explore a new hobby, improve skills or simply have fun.

Among the many offerings, Binding Basics stands out as a perfect choice for nature enthusiasts. Instructed by Caren Willoughby and Laura Doyle, this course runs from Sept. 24 to Oct. 2, meeting on Tuesdays and Wednesdays from 1:30 to 3 pm at the college's Lincoln City campus. Participants will delve into bird identification, learn about the behaviors and habitats of coastal resident and migratory birds and enjoy a hands-on field trip. The cost is $40 plus $10 for materials.

For those interested in environmental science, Paul Robertson, MSC, will lead iNaturalist and the Wrack Line: Crowd-Sourcing Environmental Data on Wednesday and Friday, Sept. 18 and 20. This workshop, taking place in Lincoln City from 10 am to noon, will introduce participants to the iNaturalist app, a powerful tool for identifying the seaweed, animals and plants that are found along the wrack line on the beach — all in an effort to track the impacts of climate change on the oceans over time. The course also explores its use in a citizen-science project at Cascade Head Biosphere Reserve, providing practical insights into environmental data collection. The course fee is $25.

Gardeners looking to extend their growing season will find valuable tips in Planning Your Winter Garden. Led by Laura Strom, this one-day session on Saturday, Sept. 7, at Newport Public Library will help participants navigate the challenges of winter gardening on the Oregon Coast. The session runs from 11 am to 2 pm and costs just $5.

Another intriguing option is Fall In To Bulbs, scheduled for Friday, Oct. 11, from 1:30 to 4 pm in Newport. Joan Crall will guide participants through the process of planting a variety of bulbs for spring blooms, with a special focus on garlic cultivation. This session combines indoor learning with a practical demonstration in the OSU Extension Service Demonstration Garden. The fee is $5.

Music lovers and aspiring musicians can join Mike Tolle for Beginning Guitar, a course designed for absolute beginners. Running from Sept. 24 to Oct. 22, classes will be held on Tuesdays from 5 to 6:30 pm in Newport. The course, priced at $40, provides a relaxed group setting where students will learn the basics of guitar playing.

The Oregon Coast Halloween Chorus, led by Brandon Lucas, invites singers of all levels to celebrate the Halloween season. This unique chorus will meet twice weekly, from Tuesday Oct. 15 to Thursday, Oct. 31, at the Lincoln City Cultural Center. Participants will prepare for a special performance featuring Halloween classics, to be delivered on stage at the cultural center early on Halloween evening. The cost for this fun and festive course is $35.

Given the popularity of these courses, early registration is recommended. For more information, go to oregoncoast.edu/communityed or call 541-994-4166. ★
