Are you comfortable with the wording of your course learning outcomes? Do they capture what you want to capture? Are they measurable? Or would you like to make some changes to them?

What did you discover about student learning based on the assessment you conducted? Where did students exceed your expectations and where did they fall short? What surprised you in this term?

When you think about teaching this course the next time, what might you change in the way you assess your outcomes? In the way you might present your material?

Have you made changes this term based on prior assessments? If so, what impact have these changes made on student achievement?
